The Right Rev. Bishop McCloskey will administer confirmation to the children who made their first holy communion at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. After this the children will renew their baptismal vows and will be consecrated to the Sacred Heart of Jesus and the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

In the evening at 7:30 o'clock the May devotions will be held beginning with the recitation of the Holy Rosary. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Father Charles P. Raffo, pastor of St Charles Borromeo church. The services will close with Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

The new vestments to be worn the first time tomorrow have been on exhibition at the Charles A. Rogers Book Company on Jefferson street, near Fourth. It took more than eleven years to complete this set of vestments. The Chasuble was made for the Paris Exposition in 1889, and on being exhibited there received the grand prize. A few years later the dalmatics for deacon and subdeacon were added. The cape and veil were made and exhibited at the Paris

Louisville Hibernians Aided Their Brothers Across the Ohio River.

The Hibernian fair which has been held in New Albany during the present week has been a success and will close tonight in a blaze of glory. The Ancient Order of Hibernians is well thought of in New Albany and the fair given under its auspices was well attended each night.

The fair was held in Holy Trinity Hall, on Market street, New Albany. The hall was tastefully decorated in green, red, white and blue, and the scene inside was a pretty one. On Monday night the ladies of the First ward were in charge with Mrs. John H. Beeler as chairman. . The members of the Young Men's Institute attended the fair that night and spent money liberally.

SOMETHING WRONG.

There was warm discussion about streets in the Board of Aldermen Tuesday evening. Aldermen Fitzgerald and Uri made serious charges, fully sustained by facts and conditions. No city spends more proportionately for street construction, repairs and cleaning, and yet no city has streets in worse condition and dirtier than Louisville. Last year lack of funds was pleaded. This year the street tax is doubled and the streets worse. What is the matter? Who is to blame? The people pay the money and get streets full of holes, in many places impassable, mud and filth in wet weather, and blinding dust in dry. Something is wrong, and it is high time it was discovered and remedied.

BOTH SIDES GAIN.

The first of May has passed without the universal labor strikes predicted and expected. This is not due to the fact that the workers weakened in their demands because they could not insist upon them, for labor was never more thoroughly organized and strong to enforce its terms, but as the result of the more peaceful, equitable and sensible methods of all bona-fide labor organizations and reasonable and just employers-conference, arbitration and concessions. The Irish Land bill passed to its Government by its own party. second reading in the British Par-bill is being supported by the Government, though the opposition to the bill comes from the Conservative (Government) party, Mr. Coghall and Sir George Bartley supporting a motion to reject the bill. Mr. John Redmond, on behalf of the Irish party, landlords and tenants, stated he would present and urge amendments, which he hoped the Government would accept, otherwise the Irish party would wash its hands of all responsibility for the measure. If the Irish party's amendments are accepted the bill will certainly pass the House of Commons; without the amendments it will probably pass. Its fate in the House of Lords is not even discussed as yet, nor is it likely to be until the character of the bill has been indicated by the House of Commons. It seems to be tacitly admitted, however, that the bill, whatever its character, will pass the Lords by a

From the present outlook it seems the bill will not pass this session of Parliament. While there is little open opposition to satisfaction with some of its provisions. Therefore act for the better this instant. The future looks bright and prosperous. Final instructions to the candidates were given by President Thomas W. Burke, of Doyle Council. A letter was read from Archbishop Elder expressing his regret at being unable to be present and sending his blessing to the members and the candidates.

Rev. Father Runnebaum, of Holy Trinity church, was called upon and gave advice and words of encouragement. He dwelt upon the pleasant relations existing between the Young Men's Institute councils and their respective pastors. Father Matthew Higgins was then called upon and said that he was pleased and impressed with the simplicity and grandeur of the initiatory ceremonies. Letters of regret were read from James A. Cotter, of Ironton, O., James M. O'Brien, of Roanoke, Va., Supreme Secretary of the order. After this the members spent a short time in social chat before adjourning to the banquet, served in another

After discussing the elaborate menu set before them, the members settled back comfortably to enjoy the addresses and music furnished for their delectation. The music, by the way, under the supervision of Miss M. A. Cassidy, greatly added to the gaiety of the occasion. After the opening Y. M. I. march by harp, violin and flute, Joseph Cassidy, First Vice President of the Kentucky Jurisdiction, arose in his place as toastmaster and welcomed all to the banquet poard. Mr. Cassidy was as happy in his introductory remarks as he was in introducing the several speakers. He introduced John E. Fitzpatrick, of Cincinnati, who responded to the toast, "The Plain People." He said in brief that the plain people are those who live simple and correct lives, the best of people. This was followed by a song excellently rendered by George Grunkemeyer.

William M. Higgins, of Louisville, responded to the toast, "The Press." In brief he said that next to the clergy the Catholic press was looked to as a power for good among the people, and urged all to support that press in its Corresponding Secretary—Frank G. endeavors to uplift the people to a higher moral plane.

Miss M. A. Cassidy rendered with feeling a harp solo, "My Old Kentucky Home." William F. Ray, Past Grand President of the Ohio jurisdiction, responded to "Good of the Order." He expressed the belief from what he had seen and heard during the day that Cincinnati would again take the lead in promulgating the ideas and aims of the Young Men's Institute. He said that the good of the order was best promoted by such gatherings and such good Catholic work as had been witnessed that day. He concluded by telling a good Chauncey Depew story. Dr. D. A. Leahy sang "Hearts and Flowers" in excellent style, after which the Rev. Father Kuhlman, of Mt. St. Mary's Seminary spoke. He delivered an excellent impromptu speech, during which he urged the young men to pitch their ideas high. Father Kuhlman spoke eloquently of the great Liberator,
